Janet (43) lives in Reading with her husband Paul and two kids, Katherine (17) and Mark (15). She met Paul while studying French and History in Bristol, and they settled down in Reading after a year abroad together.

Janet has a challenging job as a General Manager in the NHS. She enjoys a quick game or two of Solitaire on her PC over lunch, and occasionally in the mid-afternoon with a cup of tea.

Lots of websites are blocked at work so she doesn't play as many social games on Facebook as some of her friends, but she does play Bejeweled at home in friendly competition with old school friends. She likes it because it's easy to pick up, and a game doesn't take much time, though sometimes she finds herself playing for longer than she realised when she's trying to beat her friend Petra's score.

She also likes playing word games like Pictionary and charades on family holidays as they remind her of holidays with her sisters and parents when she was young.
